

Off the wall

Your wacky, often weird and brilliant friend, prepared to go where no other man would dare to tread, would be likely to have something out of the ordinary for his guests to sit on. Bold, edgy, different, it could range from spectacular to ghastly, depending entirely on personal taste. It will be sure to raise a few eyebrows either by performing enviable gymnastics or by being impossible to ignore. He'll have the compact two-seater that folds open into a generous double camper bed, or a couch with his children's faces printed on the fabric; some seats will have castors to wheel around the small spaces used regularly for entertaining. A few designs go one step beyond the conventional corner unit – you can build these into virtually any shape, very similar to Lego. ▲
